

PLAY DAY HAILED AS GREAT SUCCESS

Union Township Teams Win Most Firsts in Big County Gathering.

By FLORENCE SLOWN HYDE

Although the play day at the end of the season, which was held at the fair grounds here Friday, was completed before it began to rain, the play day, which was the first held by Rock County, was a success in every respect. The full schedule of events was carried out with nearly all districts entering teams that were eligible to do so.

The attendance was much larger than had been anticipated as it was feared that many farmers would not come to the county play day. The full schedule of events was carried out with nearly all districts entering teams that were eligible to do so.

Band Without Transportation

The only disappointment was the failure of transportation, supposedly engaged to bring the Fairbanks band from Rock County to Janesville. The chairman in charge of arrangements for the band left the county a few days ago and other arrangements for the transportation of the band were made. The band was to have been brought to Janesville by the Fairbanks band, but the transportation was not available.

SALVATION ARMY IN ITS WORK OF SALVATION

By FLORENCE SLOWN HYDE

When the Salvation Army appeals to the people of the northern half of Rock county for funds during the week of Sept. 29 to Oct. 4, it will ask for around $4,000 for state institutions, divisional and territorial work, and $5,000 for the support of the day nursery, relief work and other local activities. The fund for territorial work is only $100, a much smaller sum than that asked by other national organizations having local branches. The fund for divisional work is only $100, a much smaller sum than that asked by other national organizations having local branches.

FIRST WILL STAND FOR JUDGE LUCK

aggrandizement at the expense of the people and of the public service. He concludes his statement with an appeal to his followers to throw their support to Judge Luck.

The statement in part follows: "Despite the urgent requests of hundreds of my friends and supporters throughout Wisconsin that I become an independent candidate for the governorship, I have determined that I shall not do so. I have no desire to prosecute further the contest and feel that I should not call upon my friends to make further sacrifices."

When I resigned as executive officer of the state highway commission and announced my candidacy for the republican nomination for the governorship, I had three principal objects: To enable me to focus the attention of the people upon the extremely dangerous development of public highways, to secure the enactment of a tax on gasoline by the coming legislature so that it would be possible to proceed with the highway program necessary to protect the state and county highway investments.

The primary is over. I and my supporters conducted the most intense educational campaign that our limited funds permitted. Mr. Blaine is the republican nominee by a plurality of 112,000 less than he secured in the 1922 primary. It is the opinion of competent observers that if the primary had been held at the time of the 1922 primary, Mr. Blaine would have been elected.

A legislature has been secured that is pledged to enact a gas tax measure and one that will block every Blaine measure for taxation and the personal aggrandizement at the expense of the people and of the public service.

Now—before the flowers are frozen and the friend is gone? Five hundred varieties in bloom NOW—offering wonderful possibilities in color combinations for table and home decorations.

Jail Threat Gets Many to Pay Past Due Alimony

Warrants charging contempt of court were successful in obtaining results from three men arrested for not keeping up alimony or support payments as decreed in divorce judgments. Two of the three defendants appeared Friday before Judge George Grimm and when faced with the order of "pay up or go to jail" they decided to pay up.

Hjalmar Arneson, Janesville, paid up back alimony soon after the warrant was served on him and his case was dismissed.

Alexander Lawson pleaded that he was hard up and unable to pay for the support of his child. He married again and his wife also appeared in court and both declared they could not "make both ends meet."

Neither Otto Greulich, divorcee counsel, nor the court seemed sympathetic and when ordered sent to jail, Lawson pleaded for three days to make a settlement of the amount due.

Charles Wadel was given a few hours to make good on his back alimony and came into the court a few hours later with the money.

"Better keep up those payments," warned Attorney Greulich.

Herman Freeman was also among the divorced men warned that back alimony would mean arrest for contempt of court.

The attitude of the court and officers is that innocent victims of the divorce evil children must be given the support as ordered in the divorce stipulation. Few excuses will be accepted for non-payment.

BLEACHER BUYING GOES OVER TO 1925

Hopes for the erection of bleachers in the high school gymnasium this year were broken at a meeting of the board of education hastily called together at 5 p. m. Friday, when a motion, deferring all action was passed.

The motion offered by Commissioner Francis Grant, and seconded by Commissioner Jessie Earle was "that the board of education do not take any action on the purchase of bleachers until the installation of the bleachers be deferred for the present."

A suggestion was made by the city manager that it might be possible for a contract to be entered into between the high school athletic association and a manufacturing concern, with the guarantee of payment by the board and council, but it was brought out that such an agreement would be illegal, since the personnel of both bodies was liable to change.

That the student association had no legal standing. It was also considered improbable that any manufacturer would accept such a contract.

MRS. MUNGER IS GIVEN DIVORCE

With only limited testimony offered and the attorneys stipulating the property and support issue for the two children, Fannie O. Munger was granted a divorce from Percy L. Munger, Edgerton, before Judge George Grimm in the Rock county circuit court Friday afternoon.

The claim of cruel and inhuman treatment was upheld by the court with the defendant not contesting the case.

Mrs. Munger related of domestic difficulties in association with her husband, that there was no way in which her husband and I can enjoy family life together because of his fault finding and violent temper.

Questioned as to his averring that the plaintiff declared that she had never heard or knew of any profane words he hadn't used.

Scotia H. Martine, Platteville, also testified and the divorce was ordered by the court.

M. O. Mount appeared for the plaintiff and Charles S. Nolan was counsel for the defendant, who was in the court house before the hearing but was not in evidence during the examination.

When a Neurocalometer is applied to your spine and a certain pressure is registered, YOU KNOW the cause has been located.

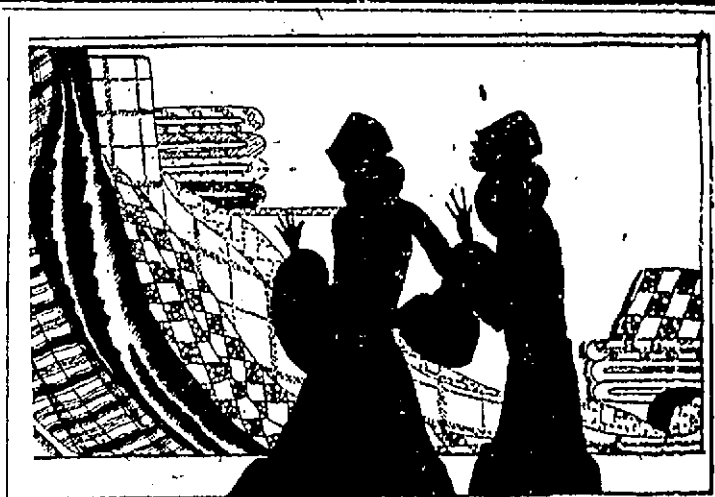

When, after taking an adjustment, the Neurocalometer is again applied to the same spot and you, with your own eyes see that the pressure has been reduced several degrees, possibly to zero, YOU KNOW that Chiropractic is right.

The Neurocalometer is a scientific instrument which does not treat (Chiropractors never treat), but which shows both YOU and the chiropractor the location of your nerve pressure and also the results AFTER the adjustment.

When Milady Goes a-Shopping

Bonnie is a new shade in fall millinery, being about a great deal in Paris.

There are various types of sweaters, but possibly those that are smartest this season are the long brushed wool coats, with high rolling collars and side fastenings.

The astrakhan coats with brushed wool trim are also new. Stripes and large plaids are a continuation of the season's new line of these in beautiful colors and styles.

Can you picture how effective would be a soft green brushed wool with shawl collar in a slip-over style—with this brand new feature—an opening part way down the front, and buttons.

Other slip-overs in powder blue have stripes running around the bottom of blue and grey. This same style come in blue and grey and henna combinations.

There are two perfectly stunning coats, perhaps they appealed to me as being such because they are dark and a contrast to the regular light colored sweaters.

One is a very dark brown, almost black, in fact, with a long rolling collar bound in tan silk, double breasted and trimmed with stripes of green and tan.

The other was navy blue with narrow stripes of grey running around the body. While bright red stripes finished the bottom, collar and cuffs.

The same style was featured in tangerine with black and grey stripes. Do you not agree with me that these would make ideal fall wraps? Better stop into Dostwick's while they have a large selection of these latest sweaters.

The time of this little story is an evening in the city, in the Monday, the place is the laundry room, and the principal character, a typical American housewife, disconsolate as she contemplates her laundry, labor over her old-fashioned wash board and wringer. While she sits thus thinking, there comes a mysterious person, "Don't look at me," she says to the girl, "I know what I have brought to help you," with this rolling in what she thought to be a beautiful new machine, but which proved to be nothing less than a Federal Electric Washer. It came two galvanized tubs and a bench, an enameled table top, and fifty packages of Federal Soap Plates.

A special premium given with every Federal sold during the next thirty days, but to revert to my story, this little housewife felt like a real Cinderella, indeed, living in a modern fairy tale, when she beheld her clothes being wringer to cleaned, while the foamy sud whirled through them in wave-like action. The all-metal constructed, wringing tumbler, by far the quickest and surest method of washing, protected her delicate garments from injury, while she sat by and watched the magic work. Next Kilmott whirled the same clothes through the new cushion type wringer with rolls guaranteed for three years, and behold! the little housewife sat there, her laundry all ready and ready to hang on the line without her ever tending a hand, and all within so short a time.

"Kilmott," for short, explained its efficiency, is that it was designed by and built for a housewife. With this she dismissed Kilmott, and turned to her laundry, to her old every day duty in the future and at the same time notified the Wisconsin Light and Power Co., she had fully decided to take advantage of their thirty-day special premium offer.

How temptingly sweet and oh, so good, are these fresh peanutt and coconut dips, a perfectly delicious confection made of fresh fruit and just out of the kitchen. It has been so long, it seems, all during those hot summer months since there was any candy made that our "sweet tooth" are all just hankering for some fresh and wholesome candies. After all a "sweet tooth" is nothing more than an craving for candy, and Kilmott's wonderfully fresh, home made candies. If you don't believe it, you should have seen the scene, as I was, when Mr. Kilmott entered from his spotless candy kitchen with a huge tray full of Coconut Macaroons, just freshly toasted in a beautiful golden brown. They were soft and "chewy," little cakes, just as you like them, and that reminded me, I had not taken anything home in some time and these would be just the thing. You have often heard that the shortest route to a man's heart is through his stomach, but with Kilmott's candy, believe that the same rule applied to the fair sex. If you would watch their eyes while some of Kilmott's fresh candy is passed around, better take the hint, boys, and take home a box of these sweets tonight. And by the way, the first of next week will bring forth a fresh "chuck" of lemon, orange and anise squares.

Ellis was superintendent, has been studying under Victor Harris, a protégé of Mrs. Henry H. Rea, New York City, the young tenor was found singing about a year ago at a street fair. ## No Soft Butter for the Chicago Runners

Wisconsin is to be overrun with Chicago gangsters and beer runners. Mayor Dwyer has put most of them out of the city there, but Wisconsin with its present lax administration of prohibition laws is an inviting field for the brewer criminals. Breweries are being purchased by the gangs of gunmen and backed by the millionaire bootleggers who make "real beer," and who get it to Chicago by the truck lines with the ways greased by corruption of officials. Wisconsin ought to take no soft butter methods with these gangsters. They ought to be dealt with as enemies of society and summarily hanged.

Janesville has escaped so far but neighboring cities have been interested in the sudden transfer of stock and brewery management in those localities. Millions were made by the gangs in Chicago, men were murdered and feuds between rival gangs added to the quick death record of the murder city.

It now looks as though Wisconsin was to be the scene of operations. What are we going to do about it?

These beer runners, as a part of the criminal conspiracy which debauches the cities, now are in need of a source of beer supply and thus find in smaller places in Wisconsin a good section for the establishment of the manufacturing end of the illicit business.

Corruption of prohibition agents and of other officials is a regular part of the business. Without it the game presents too great a hazard. In the wake of illicit whiskey and beer is always that of political corruption. The business of the bootlegger and the beer runner is a business of crime. It no longer has an air of either romance or a thrill of merely violating a law in which one does not believe. It is organized crime. It has enlisted the gunmen, the most vicious and at the same time cold blooded lot of crooks ever to disgrace the name of a nation.

Along with them come the avaricious and greedy persons who while presenting an outward semblance of honesty are no anxious to get a few more dollars that they will sell their souls and betray their own communities. The trifling bootlegger, usually a cowardly potpourri with the selfish hope of making a few easy dollars, is a third rate criminal beside the high-brow who aids in law violation by the wholesale, and who in the background profits from the beer runners who argument is an automaton.

Uncle Hiram Haversack says an optimist is a Wisconsin Democrat who thinks Davis will carry the state.

State Lands for a State Park

Senator Timothy Burke, of Green Bay, in a letter to the Press Gazette, of that city, has punctured the plan of the governor and the state treasurer, for setting aside state lands for a state park. Senator Burke calls attention to the provisions of the federal act which gave portions of the national domain to the state of Wisconsin to be used or sold for the benefit of the public and normal schools or the state university. The three commissioners of public lands act as trustees of an express trust and may handle those lands in any way they may see fit so long as the result is not at variance with the original purpose. In two cases in the supreme court it has been decided that the "control and disposal of these lands has been placed beyond the power of the legislature and it cannot set any portion of them apart as a state park."

Therefore it will be seen that the legislature has tried to do this very thing twice before and the supreme court has held that it is an illegal act. And should the commissioners and not the legislature, attempt to set aside the lands for a state park, the national government would be entitled to take them over, the state having forfeited its right to them under the terms of the agreement by which they were originally granted.

There are some other lands belonging to the state—notably the swamp lands set aside for educational purposes out of the drainage lands some years ago, but these are not large enough in acreage at any one place to make a state park worth while.

It would seem that the state may therefore fall in any attempt to take lands for park purposes and that the proposal by two of the commissioners has been made with ignorance of the law. If we have state parks we must buy the lands. The plan for state lands for a state park was presented as an offset to the demand for the purchase of the Northern Lakes Park which bill the governor vetoed. We need more state parks and one reservation above all should be owned by the people—that is the Delta with its wonderful attractiveness to thousands from all over the country.

We have the stage all set for the man who will run breathlessly into the office and announce the first snow fall.

25,000 reckless drivers will lose their auto licenses in New York, says the state tax commission, under the new motor laws. This law has worked so well in Massachusetts that New York will give it a drastic enforcement. The day of the drunken driver may come some day when we can force him to stay off a car.

New York has a new play called "Conscience." It is such a strange topic that the New Yorker ought to go and see it.

Mr. Wheeler says the present move in politics is to relieve the people of "economic serfdom."

II—WOMAN SUFFRAGE

By FRIDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington—Although women have not organized politically in support of peace, the resolutions passed by the great majority of women's organizations indicate that their new political power is a determining influence behind the efforts for world peace. It has been stated that more organized women are united on this question than on any other issue.

There is one other outstanding example of woman's political efforts as a sex—the work of the National Woman's Party to achieve a blanket amendment to the constitution, giving women full equality with men before the law. The nineteenth amendment was known as the Susan B. Anthony amendment, in honor of one of the woman suffrage pioneers. The equal rights amendment, proposed by the Woman's Party as the 20th amendment, is named for Lucretia Mott, another suffrage leader of the nineteenth century. To demonstrate the need for such a measure, the Woman's party has made comparisons of the laws of each state in regard to women. These show that instances of discriminatory laws are still numerous. In three states—Alabama, Georgia, and Maryland—a father still has the right to will his children away from the custody of their mother. In Delaware, the husband can collect money damages when his wife is injured. In Michigan, married women do not have equal rights with husbands over joint property. Wisconsin passed the equal rights law as a state measure in 1921.

It has been said that one of the few valuable by-products of war in this country has been its effect on women's status. With the men off fighting, the women of the Civil War showed their strength and proved that they were equal to such work. Even then, men and women too, boycotted some stores in Maine where women clerks were employed. Men in congress had promised that at the close of the Civil War, "justice would be done" to the women of the country. But the war left the suffragists disorganized and without funds or influence. Interest in the cause was at low ebb.

The first suffrage victory was in Wyoming which enfranchised women in 1890. Almost a quarter of a century passed; then in 1900 Colorado was added, and a little later Utah and Idaho. From 1890 to 1910 there was an interval in which no states were won. Then full suffrage was given to women in Washington and later in California, Oregon, Kansas, Arizona, Montana, Nevada, New York, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Michigan. Presidential suffrage was granted to women in 13 states, and primary suffrage in two. So the recent stand with the prohibition amendment was ratified by the necessary 36 states and became part of the constitution.

Adding states to the suffrage list was for decades the set task for feminists. Between 1870 and 1910 it is estimated that 480 campaigns for suffrage amendments to state constitutions were conducted. The National Woman Suffrage association had a congressional committee which faithfully had the same constitutional amendment presented to every congress for years.

This was the situation when Alice Paul became chairman of the national congressional committee in 1912. Like two other famous suffrage pioneers, she is a Quaker. She determined to make woman suffrage by federal action a national issue. From that time, until suffrage was achieved, it is said that she never read, talked, or thought about anything except the national campaign. As a result of the Quaker leader's determination to work entirely for a federal amendment, she and a group of followers broke away from the conservative but very successful the national congressional union, which later became the National Woman's party. The activity of these women was so picturesque as to bring about much publicity. Probably no group of women ever received more attention from the press. On March 3, 1913, when Woodrow Wilson arrived in Washington for his inauguration the next day, he drove down deserted streets. The people were watching a big suffrage parade on Pennsylvania avenue.

The million feet of suffragists was of the opinion that the political party in power was to be held responsible for giving women the vote. In due time, the new president received delegations of women interested in learning his attitude toward federal suffrage. At first the president stated, in effect, that he had given the subject no careful consideration. Later, he inclined to the view that suffrage should be settled by states, rather than by the national government. Adhering to this principle, Mr. Wilson voted for woman suffrage in New Jersey in 1915.

Two years later, the government called on women in the name of patriotism to forget everything except the business of winning the World War. This time, however, all suffragists continued their campaign and did war work as well. Older women remembered that in the Civil and Spanish American Wars, particularly in the case of the former, a conservative voice had followed the close of hostilities, and that wave had engulfed and nearly annihilated the suffrage movement. They did not purpose to be caught in the same position again. They continued with even greater determination their efforts to achieve suffrage.

The work of Alice Paul and her band of feminists was most spectacular. In spite of criticism and in spite of battles in Europe, she and her followers kept suffrage news in the headlines of the press. When President Wilson addressed congress in the house chamber, a purple, white and gold banner dropped from the gallery became the featured event of the day in the press, while the presidential message was shifted to the second page of the papers.

Early in 1917 the militants began picketing the White House, as a constant reminder to the president that women were waiting for the federal amendment. The picketing, which began peacefully enough, soon became an exciting drama of arrests, trials, and fines which the suffragists refused to pay. Finally there was a climax of work-house hunger and hunger strikes. Congressmen, suffragists, who worked quietly, questioned the wisdom of the militant tactics. It is still a matter of controversy as to how much of suffrage was due to the efforts of the militant forces in Washington.

In 1918, President Wilson said before the senate: "The services of women during this supreme crisis of the world's history have been of the most signal usefulness and distinction. The war could not have been fought without them, or their sacrifices endured. It is high time that some part of our debt of gratitude to them should be acknowledged and paid, and the only acknowledgment they ask is their admission to the suffrage. Can we justly refuse it?"

The house passed the amendment May 21, 1919, and the senate, June 4, 1919. The necessary ratification by two-thirds of the states proceeded fairly rapidly. Illinois is generally regarded as the first state to ratify, although Wisconsin also has claimed the honor. The question of the legality of the ratification procedure in Illinois caused the state legislature there to vote again on the measure later. Tennessee, the thirty-sixth state, took action in August, 1920.

All those who are suffering from such "serfdom" please stand up. We see one only and that is the former saloon-keeper and he is on the police force.

Help for the independent third party ticket is looked for from the several hundred postmasters appointed by Harding and Coolidge as recommended by the La Follette congressmen.

From the result of the trials one would gather that the locomotive is still master of the crossing as an eliminator.

JUST FOLKS

THE FRIEND FROM HOME

When you've taken to the highways, either toll or otherwise, and have traveled eastwards, westwards on this good old continent. When you've walked and talked with strangers for a week or two or more. When you've among them you have ever seen before. Oh, I tell you then, my brother, where so ever you may roam. Your eyes will dance with pleasure if you meet a friend from home.

If he passed and failed to see you, you'd start running down the street. And you'd call his name out loudly, lest you'd miss that chance to meet. For there is no thrill of gladness, when out wandering you go. Like finding 'mong the faces of the throng just one you know. It's a good old world, my brother, as you'll readily agree. In the city of the strangers when a friend from home you see.

Oh, the strangers may be kindly and their smiles be honest, too. They may guess that you are lonely and may share their joys with you. But they do not know your people and they do not know you know. And the pleasures and the sorrows which the years have written down; And there's something in the laughter, and the twinkle in the eye. Of a friend from home, my brother, which no stranger can supply.

It is not on desert islands where a man must dwell alone. But in the city with people, bitter loneliness is known; To stand upon the curbstone and to see them come and go. Men and women all around you, and not one whom you know. Oh, I tell you then, my brother, that your eyes will dance with glee. If among that march of strangers one familiar face you see.

HOROSCOPE

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1924.

Mercury rules this day in benefic aspect, according to astrology. Venus and Uranus also are in friendly way.

All should make the best possible use of this day, and the influences are stimulating and beneficent. This should be a favorable planetary government under which to adjust financial affairs, to balance accounts and make new starts.

There is, in particular, promising rule for those who save their money and a great increase of economy among both men and women is prognosticated.

Advertising and publicity should be especially profitable and useful. Candidates should make the most of opportunities to reach the public.

Editors, publishers and writers have the forecast of much fair fortune. They will find unusual demand for their work. The common sense will rule more widely in love matters.

Amazing discoveries in the occult world are prophesied and scientific minds will probe the secrets of the universe in a manner never before attempted.

Persons whose birthdate is 11 have the forecast of travel and change that will be most fortunate. The young will court and marry.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly clever and intelligent. These subjects of the Virgo-Jibba cup are usually great lovers of the beautiful. Girls probably will have talent for artistic dress.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

ON TAKING A CHILL.
A prominent citizen was five hours on his feet one December morning in the snow and cold, a northeast wind blowing at 20. The citizen had no fear of weather. When he arrived home he felt a little chilly, he said, though he believed in overcoat had kept him dry. Some of the home folks noticed, however, that there was snow on his hair and his neck was wet.

Now there is a certain class of very ignorant people who never get their necks wet if they can help it. You can pick 'em out in a gathering if you are at all familiar with necks. But this particular citizen was talking about probably had no quins of that sort. Anyway, it was some person in the house, not he, that noticed his neck was wet. I want to give the matter all the emphasis such an important matter deserves. A wet neck is a dreadful happening. Wet feet are as nothing when compared to a wet neck. A wet neck is a sure sign of places wet feet on a level with or above a wet neck in practical hygiene. The flapper goes about with her hair in enormous quantities and her necks recklessly exposed to the elements. That's because her mind is undeveloped. But the business man, you must have noticed, is very careful to turn on his coat collar when it is damp or rainy or slushy or snowing, even though he is just running across the street. He wants to save his neck.

Our prominent citizen sat right down to dinner without changing his clothes. After dinner he seemed as well as usual. But surely you must suspect that little while he was doing something. There's tragedy coming. The citizen probably rode out hundreds of miles before in the cold and wet, with his hair and his neck and everything else, that is, the dampness of the wetness somehow assumed a foreboding significance.

Well, next day was Friday—make as much of that as you will. There was a heavier fall of snow. The prominent citizen found himself with a severe cold—that's what he and his friends thought—so he went out for only a little while to mark some trees on his land he wanted cut down. Later in the day his hoarseness increased, but he made light of it like a regular citizen would do nothing. Why should he do anything about a mere "cold"?

And so it went until about 2 o'clock the next morning, when the citizen awoke his wife and told her he had had a chill. She noticed he could scarcely speak, and that he breathed with considerable difficulty. He tried to get up and do some thing, but he feared he might take cold and dissuaded her. Now I have always maintained that this "cold" was not a fatal cold, and here, I suspect, was an instance of its deadly influence.

It would be great fun to carry this record along like this for a whole lifetime or two, but there are so many important matters to print that I had better confess right now that the prominent citizen was none other than George Washington. I should like to know what George Washington died of. It is often rumored that he had pneumonia, but that wouldn't explain the "great cold" which he died of. Some times commentators suggest quins, which might explain the symptoms, but why should a vigorous man die of quins? It is not quins. From the historical records it would seem he did not succumb. Was he the victim of diphtheria? Had there been another case or two of diphtheria in the household? On any of the farms he had visited Thursday, that would fit the picture very well.

There are some optimists among the regulars who think he may beat Magnus Johnson, especially if there is a Coolidge landslide. The chances of capturing the electoral vote are only be added today to be evenly divided with President Coolidge likely to gain as election day approaches.

LABOR UNIVERSITY IN CHILE.
At Santiago, Chile, a labor university has been founded at a cost of $100,000. The aims of the institution will be to educate the working men and women in trades most suitable for their abilities. The sections for men and women will be separate. The university will be directed by the mayor and will be responsible for the new venture in education. A great deal of attention will be given to vocational guidance and specific trade training, and of course technical courses will be featured.

The "cold" delusion has served a similar purpose in the illnesses, and often the deaths of many thousands of more humble citizens. It has played a role in the passing of more than one first citizen. "Just a heavy cold" serves to quiet the curiosity of the public very much as the stork does when it afflicts the curiosity of the little child.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
The Old Doctor.
I simply wish to ask hands over your wholesome ridicule of the "old woman" superstition about "change of life." But the physician who pronounces all the ills of women between 40 and 50 inevitable and who prescribes the same mythical "change" which you declare "there ain't no such." Nothing under high school education would declare me so much. The superstitious women are not in it with the doctor. It is like a case of doctoring the doctor.

Answer—You said it, sister. We might require the superannuated doctor to get a sign over his door warning patrons that they must bring their own diagnoses and consult the old folk with a "change of life." But let us not take the "old" too literally. A lot of our most successful medical men are old women. We are in this line of humor for all there is in it. Let the unphilosophical reader be particularly careful to examine this as a woman's health is concerned there is no "change" of life and it is just as this correspondent says, "I declare, when a doctor resorts to the subterfuge to cover his incompetence. In all fairness, when a doctor prescribes such a trick, his client ought to sue him for malpractice.

Write in Care.
A week or two I got some water in my ears while in swimming. Since then I do not hear clearly and seem to feel as if I were inside of my head. (Mrs. P. J.)

Answer—If there was no old performance of the human mind it is likely that an accumulation of hardened curmudgeon (or wax) is responsible, and you might as well get a doctor for the removal of that. Often no amount of syringing will succeed and it is too dangerous to do so. The best way is of removal yourself. In some cases syringing with a few quarts of agreeable liquid will do the trick. The canal is not to be inserted the nozzle in the canal. Hang the reservoir only two or three feet above the ear and draw upward and backward the ear while syringing.

MINNESOTA HELD DOUBTFUL STATE; CAL HAS CHANCE.

It absorbed the democratic party and became the refuge of the disaffected republican agriculturist who felt the pinch of unfavorable economic conditions.

But the disaffected ones are not so numerous as they have been and a remarkable improvement in the farm situation may be noted today. The republicans are dividing its family and there is a good wheat crop besides.

While it is true that many farmers are bitter and regard the advance in prices as an accident, and they will vote their protest next November, a large number of independents will cast their votes for President Coolidge because they fear the effects of a change in administration.

The Coolidge Chance.
The regular republican strength showed a significant increase in the last primaries. This means that the republicans are coming back into the fold. The republican primary totals for U. S. senator revealed about 33,000 more votes than all the farmer-labor candidates put together. The democrats polled about 6,000 votes in a state of 300,000 voters. So it will be seen that the fight between the farmer-labor and the Coolidge. There are many Germans who have not forgotten the war and who are not so fond of the Dawes plan. They may be counted as LaFollette supporters—not democrats. Incidentally the American Legion met at St. Paul this week, and while many a resolution was passed not a word about Senator LaFollette was written in any of them. The Wisconsin delegates sat informally they were for anybody but LaFollette. Twin Cities during the war happened to be the scene of one of LaFollette's bitterest speeches and it was later the subject of investigation by the United States senate. But nobody is referring nowadays to LaFollette's anti-war speeches or the votes he registered against war measures after war had once been begun. Thus does political expediency change everything and the republican party which has LaFollette as the principal thorn in its side is ignoring the Wisconsin senator's war record. Political managers say it is a two-sided sword and that to revive the war means only to start controversies which are healing nicely.

The War Issue.
The German vote would ordinarily be regular republican and it may go that way this year unless war issues are revived, which they probably will not be. The political warfarer cannot help observing that politics permits of strange alliances on matters that might in other years be a test of the old party line. As an example, for saying as much or less than LaFollette a group of misguided persons served in federal penitentiaries and were granted amnesty only after years of struggle at Washington.

Some curious results would not be surprising this year in Minnesota. Senator Martin Johnson has a real opponent in Representative Thomas D. Schall, the regular republican nominee. Mr. Schall is the product of a factional fight among the regu-

Sonnet, N. Y.—The Long Island visit of the Prince of Wales will come to an end tomorrow night, when he will quit the scene of many dinners, dances and polo games to travel to his ranch at High River, Alberta, where he will spend a month looking over his lands. The prince leaves polo behind him for more than a year since he has sold his ponies and does not expect to get in any more practice until after he returns from South Africa, nearly a year hence. He planned to have a final view of the game today at Meadowbrook.

Final plans for the trip of the royal party from Sonnet to Montreal and thence to Alberta will be completed today.

Parties Eager to Take Colorado; Two Senatorial Seats at Stake

Both parties are eager to triumph in Colorado, where two senators will be elected in November. Senator Alva B. Adams (left), Democrat, and Senator Lawrence C. Phipps (right), Republican, incumbents, are running against each other for the long term, while a score of aspirants are seeking the short term.

In the quest of petroleum and natural gas, some remarkably deep holes have been drilled. The Goff gas well (left), near Clarksburg, W. Va., 7,386 feet deep, was the greatest in depth at the time of drilling, but it is now second. The greatest oil well is the Cerro Azul No. 4 (right), in the Tampico field, Mexico. When brought in, in 1916, it flowed 260,000 barrels of oil a day; then flowed for years at the rate of 40,000 barrels a day.

Governor Al Smith Takes Stump For Democratic National Ticket

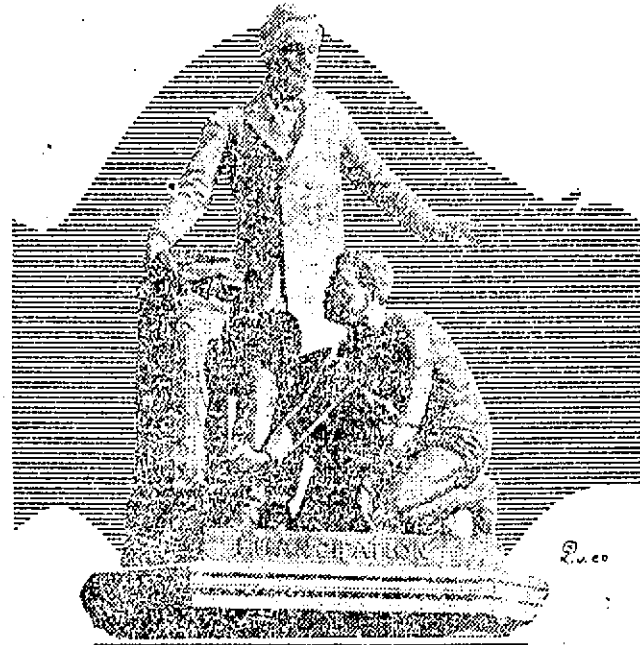

Governor Al Smith, one of the two strongest opponents of John W. Davis in the Democratic national convention, is preparing to take the stump in behalf of the ticket. He will swing through New England, down the Atlantic coast as far as Baltimore and go as far west as Chicago, visiting Ohio en route. This is the latest action photo of Al.

Sept. 22 Is 62nd Anniversary Of Emancipation Proclamation

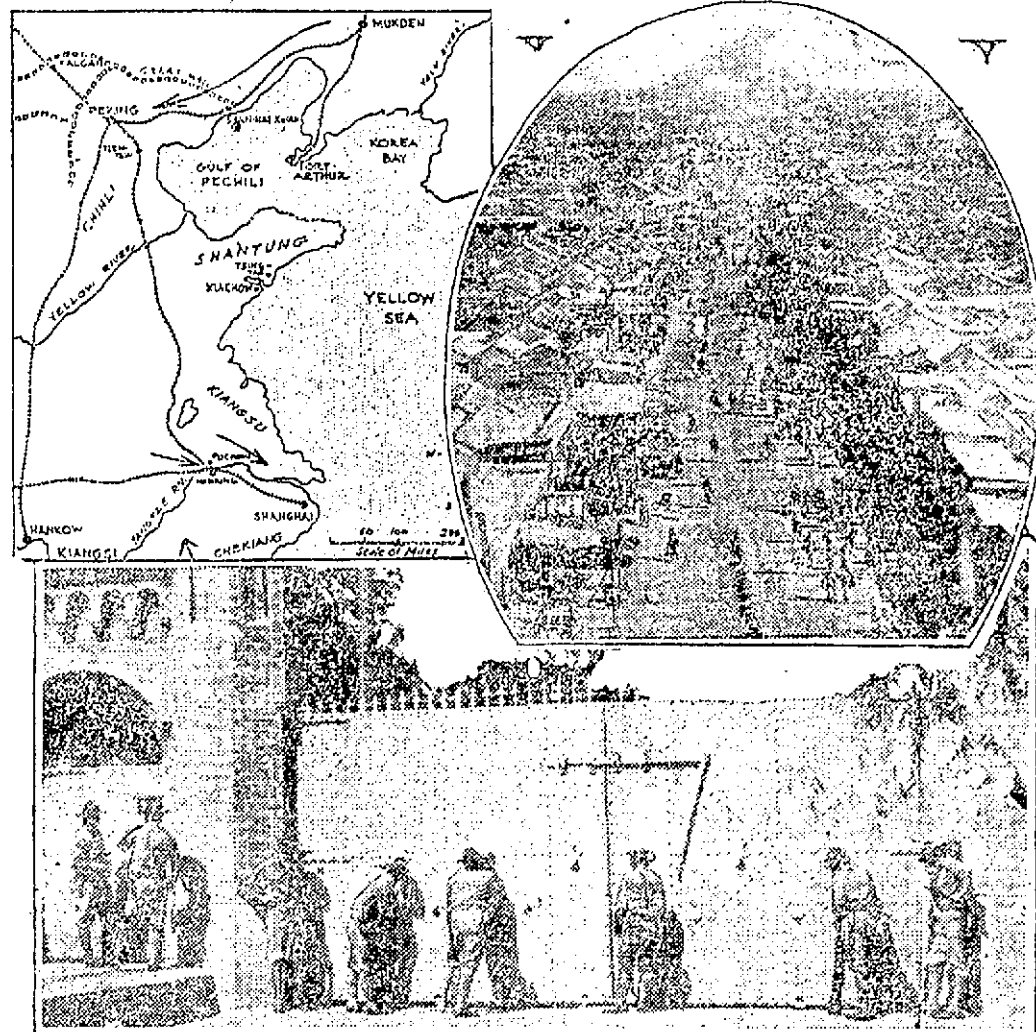

Information furnished by her ninth husband led to the arrest of Mrs. Euphemia Mondich and the discovery of the body of a boarder whom she confesses killing four years ago, after she helped him hide the body of her eighth husband, slain, she says, by the boarder. Police are endeavoring to learn the whereabouts of the seven other husbands.

Just 62 years ago, on Sept. 22, 1862, Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, the document that set a race free. This beautiful group, depicting the slaves being liberated by Lincoln, is the work of Thomas Ball. The original is in Boston; a copy is in Lincoln Park, in Washington, D. C.

Peking in Peril as Manchurian Army Moves South

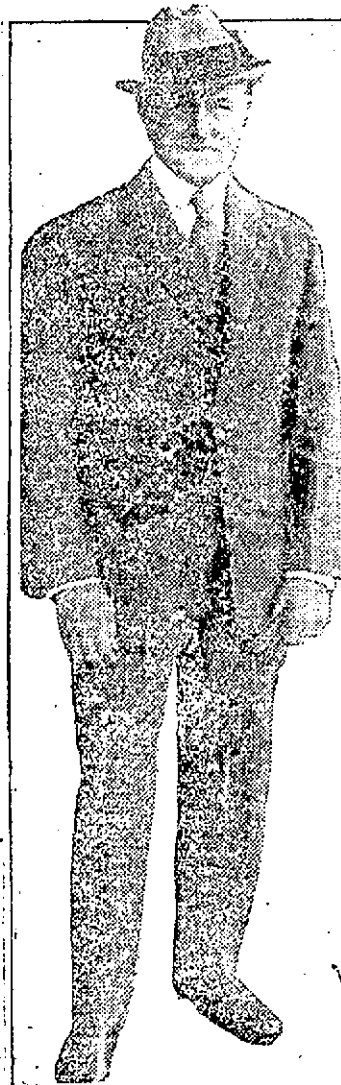

Gen. Wu Pei Fu is mobilizing every resource to cope with the peril faced by Peking in the invasion from the north of the Manchurian army of General Chang Tso Lin, which is moving on the capital from Mukden. Meanwhile forces of General Cui Hsieh Yuan are hammering at Shanghai. A view of the old quarter of Peking is shown above, and below are seen American marines guarding the U. S. legation in the Chinese capital. The map shows how armies are attacking Peking and Shanghai.

Walton Trying to Come Back In Oklahoma by Smashing Klan

Thirty years ago Jack Walton was "smashing baggage" in Siloam Springs, Ark. Today, after having been impeached as governor, he is endeavoring to smash the Klan in Oklahoma and get himself elected United States senator. He is shown here in action and in a closeup.

Now just plain Mr. John Pershing, the former general of the armies of the United States is continuing to live in Washington. He is seen on a stroll.

Propose "International Peace Park" at Mount Ararat

Proposals have been made by Armenia, through E. A. Yarrow, head of the Near East Relief, to interest Americans in a plan to establish an "international peace park" on the border of Turkey and Armenia, including the whole of Mount Ararat, upon which Noah's Ark is supposed to have grounded when the flood waters began to recede. Mount Ararat and Yarrow are shown.

Choose Your Hat—Small, Large, Medium

You needn't wear a small hat this season if a large or medium size suits you better. Small hats are good, however, as proved by the autumn brown felt cloche (left), trimmed with a collar like of brown kid to match accompanying gloves. The large hat (center) is of black lotters plush with fringed faile ribbon sash for trimming. The long scarf of veiling that trims the last hat—also of plush—is edged with ostrich.

MOST VALUABLE POSTAGE STAMP WORTH $32,000

GUIANA.
This is the most valuable postage stamp in the world, valued by its owner, Arthur Hind of Utica, N. Y., at $32,500. It is a black ink impression of a crude wood cut on a small piece of red paper, sold for one cent in British Guiana in 1856. It is the only one of its denomination in existence.

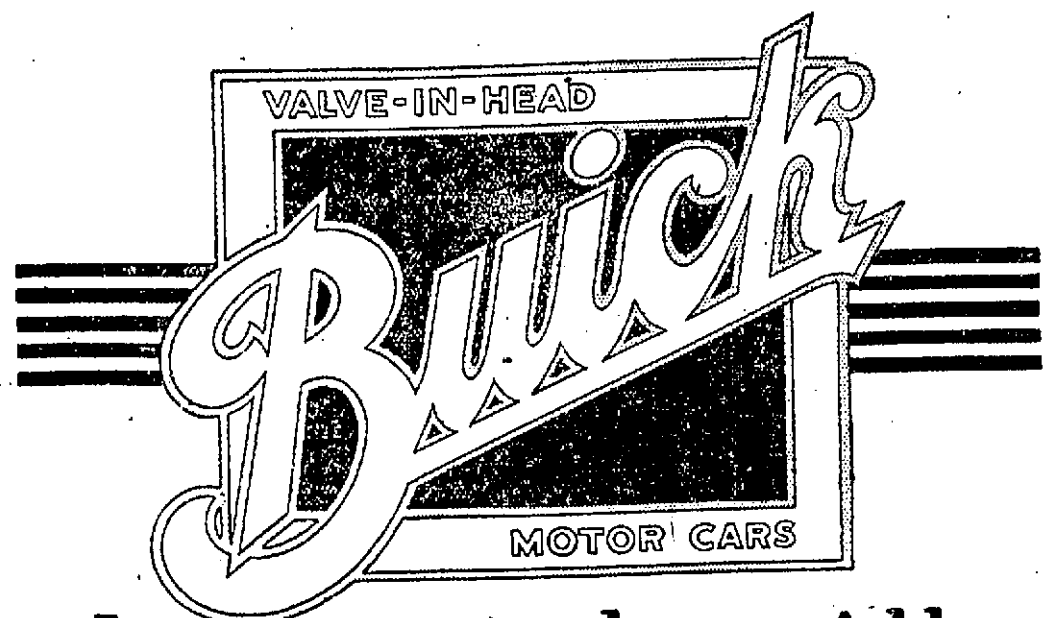

When John T. Hughes (inset), typical Kentucky colonel, died, he left his mansion (above) near Lexington, Ky., and the bulk of his $500,000 estate to three faithful negro servants. He made a few other bequests, but cut some close relatives out of his will.

The brutal murder of Elizabeth Johnson, 15, of Plainsboro, N. J., within a short distance of the scene of the Hall-Mills slaying, threatens to become as much of an unsolved mystery as that latter celebrated case. The mutilated body of the schoolgirl, found after she had been missing from her home for a number of days, gave indication that she put up a hard struggle for life. A vengeful admirer, discharged by Elizabeth's father for paying attentions to her, is suspected. Here are shown the girl (left), her home, and her mother and sisters.

MOTORIST'S

It is surprising how quickly a Buick owner accepts, as a matter of course, the dependability of his car. He thinks no more of setting off for a thousand-mile jaunt than he does of driving down town—so complete is his confidence in Buick's continuous performance.

How to Test Condition of Engine and Electrical Equipment

To determine the condition of a used car, you must make a systematic examination of it.

First test out the electrical equipment. Switch on the lights and see that all lamps light. Note the condition of the reflectors and see that no lenses are broken.

With the ignition switch OFF, press in starting motor switch and keep it pressed in for 10 or 15 seconds. If the starting motor and battery are in good order, the engine will be turned over briskly all the time the starter switch is pressed in. If it only turns over very slowly, the battery may be worn out or the starting motor may be in poor condition.

Now start the engine and observe the ammeter to note if the generator is charging the battery properly. The needle should swing over the "charge" when the engine is running and go back to "O" when it is stopped.

The next thing to do is to give the car a low speed and a high speed test to determine the condition of the engine. Drive to some quiet street and ask the owner to leave the engine in high gear, then throttle it down and let the car run as slowly as possible. Tell him at the same time to KEEP HIS FOOT OFF THE CLUTCH AND BRAKE PEDALS as it is a very simple matter to make any car crawl along at two miles an hour if you slip the clutch. If the engine is in good condition and properly tuned up, it will run along quite smoothly and regularly at from four to six miles an hour or about a brisk walking pace.

If the engine throttles down and pulls on high gear at a walking pace, it is fairly good evidence that it is in good condition. If, however, it WILL NOT throttle down, it may be that the carburetor is not adjusted correctly or a spark plug is misfiring. Usually, however, when a man is trying to sell you a used car he has it tuned up as well as possible so that when it refuses to pull slowly, the probability is that the engine is in poor condition and has no compression.

It is quite easy to test the compression and get a very good idea of the condition of the engine. First make certain that the ignition switch is OFF, then insert the hand crank and note the amount of resistance there is when you pull up on the handle of the hand crank. If the compression is good there will be considerable resistance felt. Pull up firmly for nearly a quarter of a turn, then let the handle spring back. See-saw the handle up and down four or five times "feeling" the compression, then pull it up a full quarter turn and get another cylinder on compression and test in the same way. The resistance you feel should be quite strong and the same on every cylinder.

If the compression is good on some cylinders but weak on others, it is possible that the cylinder walls are scored, piston rings worn or the valves are leaking. If the cylinder walls are scored or the piston rings worn, you will notice a lot of blue smoke comes out of the exhaust especially when the engine is speeded up. As a further test remove the spark plugs and examine the porcelain. If they are dry and a clean reddish brown color, the cylinder walls and piston rings are in good condition. If, however, they are covered with a soft, black, oily deposit, the probability is that the cylinder walls are worn or scored or the piston rings are worn. Of course if the owner has been keeping the level of the oil in his crankcase too high it will foul up the spark plugs, but when you find the compression in a cylinder very weak and the spark plug fouled up, you can depend on it that the cylinder is in poor condition.

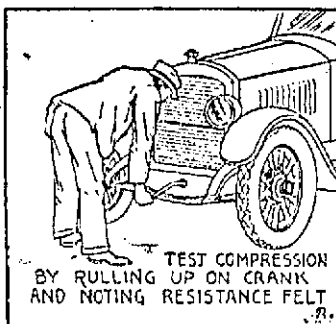

Before you start to test the compression as shown above, the engine should be run for at least 10 minutes to get it warmed up.

When you see-saw the hand crank up and down, listen for worn connecting rod bearings. If the bearings are worn you will hear a distinct rap or knock every time you push down on the handle. If you hear what sounds like loose bearings, it is a good idea to leave that car alone and let someone else have the grief.

If the slow speed and compression tests are satisfactory, test the engine for acceleration. To do this leave the car in high gear and throttle down to six or seven miles an hour then suddenly open up the throttle and speed up the engine. It should accelerate instantly without the slightest hesitation and reach a speed of twenty or more miles an hour within a few seconds. There should be no noise from the engine except a gentle purr. If it knocks or clanks badly during this test, it shows there are loose bearings or pistons.

The above tests will give you a very good idea of the condition of the engine. Next week I will show you how to make an examination of the steering gear, brakes, wheels, springs, etc.

Oil Burner Problem Solved

Here's an oil burner you can guarantee. It's the oil burner you have been waiting for—automatic, quiet, odorless, and long past the experimental stage.

We know what it will do. We have seen Oil-O-Matic's that have been in operation for five years. Perfect service year in and year out.

Only One Right Way to Burn Oil

We have seen Oil-O-Matic's made. Extraordinary care, but simple. Because the man who invented it was the first to discover how to burn oil in the home. There's only one RIGHT way. We know that Oil-O-Matic is made on that principle. We wouldn't handle it otherwise. Our reputation is at stake. We guarantee every Oil-O-Matic installation we make.

This modern oil burner cannot be classed with any other device that burns oil. Oil-O-Matic has no pilot light. No part is inside the furnace. Nothing to burn out or replace. It burns cheap fuel oil without soot or smoke. You simply must see it working.

It has the original Williams Thermal Safety Control, developed and perfected by and for Oil-O-Matic. It watches over your entire heating plant. Everything has to work perfectly or it immediately shuts off the oil and the motor.

Proved for Five Years

When you see it and talk with Oil-O-Matic users right here in town, you will realize that you need not wait any longer. The oil burner problem is solved. Oil-O-Matic is five years beyond experiment.
